01 THE PLANT LA PLANTE

Grown in Western Europe, flax takes 100 days to reach maturity. The process involves a minimal environmental footprint and requires no irrigation, only rainwater.

Soaking is the first natural step in the transformation from plant to fiber.

02 THE FIBER LA FIBRE

The flax fiber is found in the outer envelope of the stalk. It's extracted then the inner wooden core is removed.

Scutching is the mechanical process to transform the plant into fiber. Nothing goes to waste in the flax plant.

03 YARN LE FIL

The fiber is then spun using various techniques to turn it into yarn.

The fiber is straightened and stretched into slivers, and is then twisted to form the yarn. Various techniques can be used to produce different types of yarn.
